TAFT CHALLENGES T. R. TO MAKE SPECIFIC CHARGE

"Tell the People Something I Have Done or Haven't Done," He Demands.

DAN ATTACKS HANNA

Willing to Let Roosevelt Have Support of Those Who Have Been Indicted.

Sandusky, Ohio, May 15. -President Taft in the Ohio fight to-day called upon Theodore Roosevelt to be specific in his accusations against the Taft administration. The President served notice on the warrior from Oyster Bay that general characterizations would do no longer.

Mr. Taft added that he stood ready to answer any specific charge made by Col. Roosevelt

This was the most important development of the day in the remarkable political battle now being carried on in this State. The challenge issued by the President puts him squarely before the voters of the two days the President had been firing at when Roosevelt the questions: "Will you accept a fourth term if you get a third?" and "Will you dismiss the Federal suits against the Steel and Harvester trusts if nominated and

The Colonel up to a late hour to-day had ignored these questions. On top of them the President this afternoon issued his challenge for a bill of particulars against his administration. He repeated this challenge time and again in the course of

The President's aggressive attitude was plainly reflected in the character of the receptions that he got to-day.

The crowds were bigger, more enthusiastic and more plainly in favor of the President than those which he faced during his first two days of stumping in his home State. It looked as if Ohio Republicans were at last becoming aroused to the importance of the stakes involved in

It was at Bucyrus before a great crowd that the President first called on Roosevelt to drop his generalizations and come down

"What have I done?" asked the President, "that I ought not to have done at or what I left undone that I ought to have done? General characterization does not help. It is said I am under the influence of bosses. In what respect?

Specify anything I have done under their influence detrimental to the public. Am I not entitled to know what charge is made against me except in general terms? I can deny that, but put in specifications and then I will go to the proof.

This call upon Roosevelt for a bill of particulars, following a recital by the President of the facts in regard to Roosevanced, and Ohio Republicans were predicting to-night that Roosevelt would be smoked out into framing definite charges

The President in the course of the day also devoted considerable attention to Roosevelt's latest announcements that he would leave the use of epithets exclusively to President Taft in this Ohio fight. This was the Colonel's only reply to the President's characterization of him as an egotist, flatterer and honeyfugler.

The day of campaigning which the President ended here to-night was the most trying on his strength that he has experienced in the present contest. He was on the go from 7 o'clock in the morning until 11 to-night. He delivered seventeen speeches, most of them out of doors, and ended the day with his voice to harky that he could gesterely stock. so husby that he could scarcely speak above a whisper. It looked for a time as if he would be unable to say anything to the big crowd in this city. At Oberlin the President's voice went back on him completely after a few semences and he had to give up. Major Rhodes, his phy-sician, went to work on his throat and by straining himself the President was able to complete the nerve racking schedule at Elvria and Sandusky.
